

This Incident was at Putney 1959.

Capt. B.D. Dace, British Army demolition expert, steps gingerly around the dirt-encrusted German booby-trapped bomb found in a 14-foot deep, waterlogged crater in suburban Putney, five miles from the centre of London, July 2, 1959. The bomb, resting on a wooden platform was dropped by the Germans in World War II and remained hidden until found by workmen digging a sewer trench. A team of Army men removed all but three of the 250 pounds of explosive in the bomb, which was then detonated. (AP Photo)

Ingrid And Wed-Court

A HOME court of appeal has ruled that Ingrid and Wed-Court should be allowed to marry.

The court reversed an earlier decision of the High Court, which had ruled that the couple were not entitled to marry.

The appeal was heard by Lord Justice of Appeal, Lord Denning, and Lord Justice of Appeal, Lord Evers.

The couple, who are both 21, were married in 1947, but their marriage was annulled in 1950.

The court ruled that the couple were entitled to marry, as they were both of legal age and of sound mind.

The court also ruled that the couple were entitled to the same rights as other married couples.

The court's decision is a landmark ruling in the history of English law.

The couple are now free to live together as a family.
